

We are here to help you find work

You are unique! At Iris, we want to provide you with the help you need to find work.

It is important for us to find unique opportunities for unique people. When training and experience is not enough, we find other ways of reaching the companies. In our model, you will progress step by step at your own pace.

In your job project, you will receive support in realising your potential and the opportunities ahead of you. We are experts at pinpointing the essentials of your skills set, and highlighting the aspects that make you valuable to an employer.

We have networks and labour market knowledge for all types of professional fields, everything from smaller service companies to large industries. At Iris, you will be seen and taken seriously, regardless of the profession or workplace you choose.

We have successfully coached people into getting jobs for more than one hundred years. Our personal commitment is our strength. For us, you will never be just another face in the crowd.

Curious? Come see us, and we will tell you more!
